Inno-Vita© products provide the health practitioner and their clients with safe formulas free of animal tissues and undesirable effects.

Extraordinary Growth

In the year 2006 over $100 billion was spent in the Nutraceutical market. Of these herbal remedies purchased, the fastest growing portion of this market is from the professional product lines which are now over 27% of the market. This extraordinary growth is attributed to one simple cause, success! Health professionals of various practices, modalities and training have experienced tremendous results providing their clients with alternative healthy solutions. This adds an even greater responsibility to the health professional that the products they provide are safe, healthy, effective and affordable.

Absolutely no animal by-products

Most professional supplement product lines include animal glandulars to improve the overall effectiveness of their formulas. This is by no means a new practice. People have recognized positive results from animal glandulars for thousands of years. However, the research scientists at Inno-Vita are concerned by the many unknown variables of raw materials used in today's nutraceutical supplement industry. Modern-day livestock husbandry practices involve steroids, antibiotics, vaccines and hormones in order to meet the productivity demands of today. In addition to the fact that a majority of the livestock never reach the prime of their life cycle terrible new diseases have made their way into the human genome such as the Mad Cow Disease (BSE Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy). We can no longer be assured that today's livestock share healthy and safe genetic identities.

Introducing FormCodes™

Inno-Vita's research team began working with a genetic lab in order to find solutions that would allow us to replace the animal glandulars with something far more effective. The team carefully defined the genetic sequences of each organ from a healthy human being at their optimal health. Inno-Vita blends these sequence combinations by using the very same amino acid building blocks of a healthy human into their professional line of products. Inno-Vita has termed these genetic sequences FormCodes™. The FormCodes™ eliminate the dangerous animal by-product guessing game and provide a very potent effectiveness which is genetically patterned after humans for humans.
